

Fluorescence

AstraNet has installations where the application involves measuring fluorescence from solid samples.

A fluorescence probe is offered up to the sample. The excitation wavelengths can be provided by an LED or a broadband light source.

The emitted wavelength is collected by a fibre optic cable with a cut-off filter placed in front to remove the source radiation.

