

Process Control

Using flowcells or immersion probes to measure the sample, the AstraNet spectrometers make excellent process control instruments.

The AstraNet instrument has built-in digital input and output channels and we have installations where these are used to trigger alarms and interface to SCADA systems.

We specialise in providing complete systems including hardware, firmware and software.

